FAQ

What if I'm a student who is also an alumnus in one of a university in Birmingham which status should I choose?

Choose student status and add your previous studies in the education section. Then, the system will read your graduate year and automatically put you as an alumnus of your last university and a student of your current university since you have yet to graduate from the current one.

My sister and I are a student at one of the universities in Birmingham, and we live together. Should I add my sister as my family member?

Yes, you should add your sister as your family member, but your sister must also register her name as a student and do the same.

My husband is a student at one of the universities outside Birmingham but lives in Birmingham with me. Should he register himself as a student as well?

No, you just need to add your husband as your family member.

I'm a student at one of the universities outside Birmingham, but I live in Birmingham. Which status should I choose?

You should choose citizen instead of student, student status is only for those who study in Birmingham

I'm an alumnus of one of the universities in Birmingham and currently living in Birmingham. What status should I choose?

You should choose citizen and add your study record in the education part. Then, the system will read your graduate year and automatically put you as an alumnus of your last university.

I'm an alumnus of one of the universities in Birmingham and currently living in one of the UK cities. What status should I choose?

Choose alumni as your status
